OUR WAY OF LIFE. God is all powerful and should inspire in us a "holy sense of awe and wonder". Abraham our father in faith knew God as well as anyone who has lived. In his relationship with God he retained his sense of proportion with God his father, but also was so intimate with him that he could speak to him as a person discusses prices with a market stall owner in a Middle Eastern market. That intimacy, together with awe and wonder should be our aim.

A REFLECTION. What should we ask God for? If we want to have the greatest treasure we should ask God that we really do know him personally; that would mean a change of both mind and heart because we would see every eventuality of life and other human beings in God's way, not from the merely human point of view.

WORD OF LIFE You received without payment; give without payment

Love will help us see what other people need, and love will show us how to respond creatively and generously. What will be the outcome? Gifts will circulate, because love generates more love. Joy will be multiplied since, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35) `.

This is exactly what happened to Vergence, a little girl from Congo. She said, "On my way to school, I was really hungry. Then I met my uncle who gave me money to buy a sandwich, but a little further on I saw a very poor man. At once I thought of giving him the money. My friend who was with me told me not to do it and that I should think of myself. But I said to myself: I will find food tomorrow, but will he? So I gave him my sandwich money and I felt great joy in my heart."

The logic of Jesus and of the Gospel is that we always receive in order to share and never to hoard things for ourselves. It is also an invitation to all of us to recognize what we have received: energy, talents, skills and material goods, and put them at the service of others.

This is what happened in the Philippines, through a project that began in 1983. At the time, the political and social situation in the country was very difficult and many people were committed to finding positive solutions.

A group of young people decided to make their contribution in a different way: they opened their cupboards and took out everything they no longer needed. They sold it all in a jumble sale and, with the little capital that they had raised, they opened a social centre called Bukas Palad, which means "with open hands" in the local language.

The sentence in the Gospel that inspired them was: "You received without payment; give without payment" (Mt 10:8)," and it became the project's motto from then on.

Some doctors joined in, offering their professional services without wanting anything in return, and there were many others who opened their hearts, their hands or the doors of their homes.

That was how a wide-ranging social action developed helping the poorest people. It still offers various types of service in a number of cities in the Philippines today. The people they rediscover their dignity as people and thus build relationships of esteem and solidarity. Their example and commitment helps many others to escape from poverty and take on responsibility for a new way of life for themselves and their families, for their neighbourhood and their communities, and for the world.
